MM named Sub-Contractor of the year by AGC

Mulvaney Mechanical received the coveted 2009 AGC "Sub-Contractor of the Year" award. The award was presented by the Associated General Contractors of Connecticut (AGC) at the Aqua Turf Club in Plantville, Connecticut on October 13, 2009.

AGC of Connecticut is the regional chapter of the, a National Construction Contractors trade association. The AGC represents commercial, industrial, and institutional construction contractors, subcontractors, material suppliers and professionals serving the construction industry. They maintain close ties with public and private owners on matters of industry concern. The AGC is the nation's largest and oldest construction trade association. It was established in 1918 at the request by then President Woodrow Wilson. Wilson recognized the construction industry's national importance and desired a partner with which the government could discuss and plan for the advancement of the nation.

Diet Rules to limit holiday stress caused by fear of overeating

- If you eat something and no one sees you eat it, it has no calories.
- If you drink a diet soda with a candy bar, the calories in the candy bar are cancelled out by the diet soda.
- When you eat with someone else, calories don't count if you do not eat more than they do.
- Food used for medicinal purposes NEVER count, such as hot chocolate, brandy, toast and Sara Lee Cheesecake.
- If you fatten up everyone else around you then you look thinner.
- Movie related foods do not have additional calories because they are part of the entertainment package and not part of one's personal fuel.
- Cookie pieces contain no calories. The process of breaking causes calorie leakage.
- Things licked off knives and spoons have no calories if you are in the process of preparing something.
- Foods that have the same color have the same number of calories. Examples are: spinach and pistachio ice cream; mushrooms and mashed potatoes.
- Chocolate is a universal color and may be substituted for any other food color.
- Anything consumed while standing has no calories. This due to gravity and the density of the caloric mass.
- Anything consumed from someone else's plate has no calories since the calories rightfully belong to the other person and will cling to his/her plate. (We ALL know how calories like to cling!)

2010 R22 PRODUCTION PHASE OUT

R-22, along with several other chemicals, have been shown to deplete the ozone layer, which protects us from harmful UV radiation. In 1990, the United States worked with the global community to protect the environment by phasing out the supply and use of these ozone depleting compounds.

The phase out started in 1996 with CFCs and it will be complete by 2020 for HCFC R-22 that is used in air conditioning and refrigeration. The phase out is being enforced via an EPA program (under the terms of the Clean Air Act) that issues production and consumption rights. One right equals one kilogram of R-22 supply. The EPA will limit the amount of R-22 that is available for use in refrigeration and air conditioning equipment by lowering the amount of R-22 consumption rights over time. The next step down is in 2010, when the HCFC rights cap that controls the amount of allowed R-22 supply will be lowered by at least 46% from today's levels.

Today's demand for R-22 is higher than what was expected in 1998 when the phase put of R-22 started. While a number of non-ozone depleting compounds have been available for many years now, R-22 equipment is still the best seller. New equipment and an ever growing installed base are driving market demands for R-22 to historically high levels. Customers and service companies are reluctant to changeover to the newer refrigerants. This reluctance is primarily due to a loyalty to a proven refrigerant performer. No one is eager to move to a new material that may not deliver the same level of performance. New equipment manufacturers are driving the change as they produce new lines of refrigerating equipment. The change to non-CFC/HCFC's is inevitable and 2010 marks the turning point for this transformation.
